

CHILDREN BATTLE OVER WHO IS TO SUPPORT MOTHER

Judge Keller Makes Orders Upon Three of The Group

TIPSY" DRIVER CASE

William Rosenberger, Warminster, Must Pay Fine; Sentence Suspended

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 8.—With his father a patient in the Allenwood State Hospital and their mother, Nancy DeMasi, 58, Kintnersville, D. I., an invalid, who is unable to ed herself or move about, six children, including two sons and four daughters, "battled it out" as to who will contribute towards the support of their mother.

President Judge Hiram H. Keller, who presided at the hearing in which Joseph and Nicholas DeMasi, Anne Heidecker, Florence M. alter and Dorothy M. and Angele DeMasi, were charged with non support of indigent parent, made the following orders:

Joseph DeMasi, 33, 1428 Court-right st., Hellertown, who owns shoe repair business and lives in a $18,000 home, was directed to pay $2 a week for the support of a mother.

Nicholas DeMasi, 30, Weidner D. near Bethlehem, was directed to pay $2 a week. He is employed by Bethlehem Steel.

Mrs. Anne DeMasi Heidecker, 7 Wyndotte st., Bethlehem, who lives in her parents home in that city, was ordered to pay $4.

No orders were placed on Florence M. Walters, Dorothy and Angele DeMasi because they have been bringing and providing for their in-laws mother.

Harry Walters, Kintnersville, D. I., a son-in-law, the first witness in the Commonwealth, testified the mother, Mrs. DeMasi, was living at his home. He said she required care day and night.

"Dorothy and Angeline have been helping out," said their brother-in-law.

"The Court doesn't have much sympathy for children who won't take care of their parents," Judge Keller said.

William Rosenberger, 27, a World War II infantryman, Warminster, pleaded guilty to drunken driving before President Judge Hiram Keller, and was given a suspended prison sentence on condition that he pay a fine of $150 and the costs of prosecution was severely primaried by the Court.

"This is your second tilt with the law," said President Judge Keller, in 1933 you had some experience with the Court when a prison sentence was suspended on a charge of receiving stolen goods which consisted of breaking into a building and stealing an inspection sticker." Rosenberger admitted he was not guilty of the actual stealing, but was with the man who did.

Rosenberger, the father of two children, seven and three years old, and who is divorced, drew the favor of the Court and District Attorney when he said he "often, but not usually, drinks 10 glasses of beer."

The defendant, who is employed as a mechanic under the GI Bill of n-the-job training, was arrested August 28 following an accident when his car collided with a bridge over Neshaunmy Creek.

Rosenberger, who suffered injuries to his face, was taken to some friends' home and later to the home of James Fluck Street road, Warminster, where he was found lying on the floor when state policemen arrived to arrest him.

Activities of Interest To All in The Various Communities

GLEANED BY SCRIBES

When Dr. J. Edward Smith, supervising principal of Doylestown schools, spoke to Kiwanis Club members at Doylestown this week, he declared that the birth rate is growing by leaps and bounds with expectation that by 1953 the schools in the United States may have six million more pupils.

"We are still trying to run a 1909 model of education in the atomic age and it can't be done," he declared. He deplored the fact that the schools had not recovered from the depression years of the 1930s when World War II came along. Dr. Smith quoted H. G. Wells who said: "Civilization is a race between education and catastrophe."

Dr. Smith who mentioned the physical needs of schools, including a new plant for the Doylestown system pointed out that a recent study of the tax situation revealed that assessments ranged from four per cent to 17 1/2 per cent of the marketable value of real estate.

"Education faces one of the most crucial crises in America today," the speaker said. Factors in the crisis are lack of trained and adequate personnel, failure to support an educational program, lack of new buildings and equipment and lack of proper methods of financing education.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

The United States, it was learned, will not support any move to bring Spain into the United Nations or take the initiative in changing that body's attitude toward the Franco regime. Spanish Republicans announced in Paris that they had agreed with the Monarchists on a plebiscite to determine whether a republic or monarchy should supplant the Franco Government.

Russia's disarmament proposal was rejected by the Western powers in the United Nations Political Committee on the ground that Moscow had not presented a specific plan for international control and inspection. Agreement on atomic energy also hinged on a control plan, and a special subcommittee was named to study the possibility of an accord.

It was indicated in Washington that Secretary Marshall had ordered that Russia's atomic energy proposal "be debunked in the simplest phraseology" in the State Department's propaganda.

Representatives of six nations in the Security Council who were not directly involved in the Berlin dispute met secretly to find an acceptable way to transfer the issue from the Council to the Big Four Foreign Ministers. In the Berlin airlift routes the Russians staged their greatest air maneuvers, including bombing with "five" bombs.

SCHOOL CONSTRUCTION IS TO START SOON

New School at Edgely, Additions to Other Bldgs., Will Get Under Way

TO BUY A NEW BUS

A lengthy discussion centered about the new building project for Bristol township school district, when school directors met in Bristol township junior high school building on Rogers road, last evening.

Lewis P. Mackenzie, architect for the district, was present, and directors were informed that all contracts are now in order, and that construction on the junior high school, the new school at Edgely, and addition to the Maple Shade building will commence within a few days. An all-out effort will be made to complete the project as soon as possible, members of the board were told.

William D. Knight was the presiding officer, he calling for reports of the secretary and treasurer.

Secretary Clarence Young informed the board that all title companies and real estate agents in this locality have been notified of the tax for general purposes of $1 per $100 relating to the transfer of real estate in Bristol township, and that returns are now coming in.

The secretary was instructed to advertise for bids for a new school bus.

Joseph Seader, the new compulsory attendance officer for the district, discussed his duties with board members.

Health Board To Proceed Against Restaurant Here

There was a serious discussion last night by the Bristol Health Board concerning action to be taken against a Bristol public eating place for non-compliance with the laws governing such places. The health officer was instructed to proceed against the establishment.

William A. Groff, health officer, reported to the board that he has repeatedly warned the offender and that sufficient time has been given him to comply with the law. Groff was instructed to take the necessary action.

There were only two reportable diseases during the past month, the board was informed. There were three nuisances reported, and the monthly inspection of dairies was made.

WHO LOST THE PEACE?

Everyone knows we won the war. Now it seems we may be about to have to fight it all over again, in slightly different form. Russia has emerged as a world threat, perhaps as dangerous as the Axis were eight or ten years ago.

Uncle Sam and Russia are at grips with each other. We are in a "cold" war, which may turn "hot" at any moment. Berlin is only one of several fuses where world conflict might be set afire.

Who is to blame? Whose mistakes are responsible? Where did the breakdown in international cooperation and friendship take place?

WHO LOST THE PEACE?

This subject, which future historians may come to see as the gravest issue of the election, was blown wide open this week in a Dewey Warren radio appeal made by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Michigan Republican, who is president pro tem of the U. S. Senate and head of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee.

As Republican leader on foreign affairs, and as principal champion of "bipartisanship," Senator Vandenberg speaks with authority on the subject.

In his radio address, he made clear that "unity" and "bipartisanship," which are objectives of the Republican nominees, do not mean that the blunders of the New Deal in the field of peace are not to be "subject to searching scrutiny."

He then mentioned several "past lapses" as being "outside of any concept of bipartisan cooperation" and said they were "lapsing which account for many of our present hazards."

Senator Vandenberg was using the high-flown language which associates itself with diplomacy. Translated, his remarks meant that here are the blunders which lost the peace.

He named no names. But the identity of those to blame is self-evident.

Here is his listing of the four "lapsing" which he so obviously implies are the points at which Uncle Sam lost the peace. The quoted lines are the Senator's words, with editorial comment inserted below:

"The failure to make our peace aims just as much a matter of record as we did our war aims."

This refers to the fact that the Atlantic Charter, supposedly signed with Churchill, later was admitted to

Today's Quiet Moment

By the Rev. H. Henry Heavener
Pastor
Cornwells Methodist Church

"Sweet hour of prayer that calls me from a world of care and bids me at my Father's throne make all my wants and wishes known." How often, O Lord, do we in our human faltering manner attempt to find release from the day's pressing problems and come at last only to utter despair and disappointment. Teach us always to turn to thee and beseech thee for help, to seek thy face in all things, knowing that in thee alone may we find perfect peace and rest. In Jesus' name. Amen

3. The Question to Be Decided in The Vote to Be:—"Whether or Not a Majority of The Employees Now on Strike Want to Return to Work on The Basis of All of The Offers Made by The Company Prior to The Strike."

ANSWER

Inside Your Congress

Truman and Congress

—by—
SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL
"The Gentleman from Indiana"

In 1866, President Andrew Johnson said: "We have been hanging upon the verge of the government as it were, a body called, or which assumes to be, the Congress of the United States." The people responded to this smear by electing a strong anti-Johnson Congress, which two years later impeached the President.

The country waited until 1948 before it again witnessed anything approaching this dirty brawl. Even F. D. Roosevelt did not attempt to purge more than a dozen congressmen and Senators. Mr. Truman would purge Congress itself. "Fire this 80th Congress—a bunch of old mossbacks—the tool of the interests—the worst Congress in history," he said.

Any President may appeal to the country. President Wilson took to the stump in behalf of the Treaty of Versailles and the League of Nations. Other Presidents have used messages to Congress, newspaper interviews, "White House Breakfasts" and "Fireside Chats" to mobilize public opinion.

Even so conservative a man as Coolidge said: "It is the business of the President as party leader to do the best he can to see that the declared party platform promises are translated into legislative action." Franklin D. Roosevelt spoke of "leading the Presidency as a pulpit." The President has the constitutional duty to "recommend . . . such measures to Congress as he shall judge necessary and expedient." He can ask the people to back him up. Finally, he can veto any bill he does not approve.

But there is a limit to his power. No unlimited power exists in this republic. The Constitution, which gives the President all the power he has, also gives "all legislative powers" to the Congress of the United States. It is one thing for a President to urge a course of action up to final vote, including the overriding of his veto. After that, can the President, within the spirit of the Constitution, decide Congress and in doing that, necessarily hold up to derision the acts of Congress, the statutes of the country, for the passage of which he expresses his contempt of Congress? Can he condemn the whole Congress as an institution?

Former Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, in a speech before college students, warned against those who would belittle and degrade Congress as an institution. The path to dictatorship is strewn with the wreck of parliaments.

A member of Congress may be wrong; he may be criticized, even if right; a party majority or minority may be wrong. But Congress itself, as a branch of the government, cannot be wrong in any constitutional sense. It is a creature of the Constitution vested by it with "all" legislative powers granted by the Constitution. To attack it is to attack the Constitution which created it.

The Constitution imposes upon the President the duty to "take care that the laws (passed by Congress) be faithfully executed." How can a law be "faithfully" executed by a President who is contemptuous of the Congress that passed it?

Mr. Truman's main quarrel with Congress is over the Taft-Hartley bill and the tax reduction bill, both of which were passed over his veto. This was done only because Democrats and Republicans, by a two-thirds vote in each House, disagreed with him. Thus defeated, a man with a sense of responsibility to "preserve, protect and defend" the Constitution by the processes of which he was checked and defeated, would say no more.

This goes beyond "campaign oratory" or the hurt vanity of a man "dressed in a little brief authority, most ignorant of what he's most assured." It is a violation of the spirit of the American Constitution.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY PARADE

By Max Factor, Jr.

(Famous make-up advisor to the Screen Stars now Writing for INS.)

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—Soldiers are trained in habits of cleanliness and neatness, and schooled to take pride in the perfection of their appearances, long before they are drilled in use of weapons of war.

This is not a silly affectation on the part of military authorities. It is a display of practical common sense. The man who is inspired by pride in himself and in his appearance is automatically imbuied with a morale which makes him a more effective person than the man who lacks such pride.

Laying stress on these principles is just as applicable in the case of women. The woman whose appearance reflects the fact that she takes pride in it is a much more socially effective person than the one who presents an obvious lack of such pride and perfection.

It is undoubtedly best that such pride in appearance be instilled into a girl long before she has reached womanhood. Training along these lines should be regarded as one of a mother's major responsibilities.

The importance of personal appearance can be impressed upon young minds at a much earlier age than many mothers seem to realize. And once such an impression has been made, a very important groundwork for the realization of beauty in years to come will have been established.

Mothers should bear in mind that once youngsters have reached a sturdy walking-talking age it is better for them to be taught to keep themselves immaculate than it is for them to be kept in this condition by a solicitous parent.

The sooner responsibility of this sort can be placed upon the shoulders of the children themselves, the better it will be for their adult appearances. No one will be washing the youngsters' faces for them when they grow up.

Readers should not get the idea that the import of this article is directed solely in the direction of children. It should concern a great many adult women, too.

Lack of constant neatness is still a too frequently discernible flaw in the feminine glamour scene.

Many women who at first glance seem to be at least competently groomed prove to be importantly lacking neatness upon closer inspection.

A superb degree of neatness and

COMFORTABLY COZY AND NOT COSTLY

Designed For the Small Family that wants to build its own home but must hold costs to a minimum, and ideal for newly-weds, this delightful little house utilizes every inch of its space in charmingly effective fashion.

Heart of the House is a 13x23 foot central room, one end of which becomes a cozy bedroom when a folding bed is let down from behind wall panels beside the fireplace. (Right) A nursery is one of four small rooms placed at corners of room, others being bath, kitchen, dressing room.

Here's the Bed Let Down from its daytime niche, ready for the night. Through the open doorway at the left, is a glimpse of the dressing room beyond, which has two roomy pine chests, and plenty of space for clothes.

In The Big Room, As Throughout the house, linoleum was used on the floors, its dominant color tones keynoting the decorative scheme in each room. Here, linoleum is beige and tan, highlighted with turquoise and red.

By MARION CLYDE MCCARROLL

The small family that wants to build a home of its own, but hasn't yet found a plan that would fill its needs at a price it can afford, will be interested in the five-room cottage pictured here.

For while its designers decline to place any definite figure on putting up this compact and comfortable cozy little home, for the reason that costs of labor and materials vary so greatly in different parts of the country, they do say that in planning the house they had modest budgets in mind.

The house itself is 23 by 25 feet overall, with a central room 13 by 23 feet. One end of this central room becomes the bedroom at night, when a regulation folding bed is lowered from behind folding panels beside the fireplace.

The four other rooms—nursery, dressing room, bath and kitchen—open off the four corners of the central room, with dining space provided at one end of the big room in front of French doors overlooking terrace and garden.

While actual blueprints for this house are not available, preliminary sketch plans, together with a booklet illustrated in color showing all details of decoration and furnishing, can be had upon application to the company which sponsored the designing of the cottage. Such preliminary sketches can then be taken to a local architect who should be able to make from them the necessary working drawings, and also to estimate the cost of building the house in your own locality.

MARKS BIRTH OF BIG PENNA. INDUSTRY

HARRISBURG, Oct. 8 — There is a tiny building on Smallman street, Pittsburgh, which is well on its way to becoming a national shrine, for it was there that the great aluminum industry was born. In 1938, the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania joined with the Aluminum Company of America to unveil a tablet on the site of the pioneer plant which is carefully preserved in its original form.

Today, ten years later, the Department of Commerce joins with other Pennsylvanians in acknowledging the contribution to science made in this small building.

Although aluminum was discovered in 1825 by Hans Christian Oersted, an eminent Dutch physicist and chemist, his chemical process to separate the metal from one of its numerous compounds was much too involved and extremely expensive. (Aluminum is one of the few metals which occurs nowhere in nature in a pure or nearly pure state. It is always found in compound with other elements.)

As late as 1855, aluminum was quoted at $545 per pound. In 1859, the total world production was exactly 4,000 pounds.

The virtues of the metal — its lightness, strength and adaptability to many uses — were recognized early, and at great cost Napoleon had had part of his army's equipment made of it. But for the greater part, it was out of sight commercially.

It was not until 1886 that the first simple, cheap process for isolating aluminum was discovered. Charles Martin Hall, a young Ohioan fresh out of Oberlin College, made the discovery after long hours spent as an undergraduate student and later as a private researcher. He was only 23 years old when he found the principle that was to make industry.

Hall found that by use of a simple process of electrolysis, the principle of which was long in use, aluminum could be produced from its ore at a great saving of time and money. All that was needed was a cheap plentiful supply of electricity.

After two heart-breaking years of indifference on the part of financiers in Cleveland, Boston and New York, Hall found, in 1888, his first sympathetic audience in Captain Alfred E. Hunt, a Pittsburgh businessman and metallurgist. Hunt was so sold on the idea that within a year he had gotten six other businessmen to help finance the commercial enterprise.

The Pittsburgh Reduction Company, the forerunner of the Aluminum Company of America, was established with a capital of $20,000. The concern began business in the little building on Smallman street in Pittsburgh. Hall was put in charge of all phases of technical work.

It didn't take long to prove that the makings of a great industry were in process. First production averaged only about 50 pounds of metal daily, but this was enough to lower the price of aluminum to $5 a pound. Within another year, the price was down to $2 and the metal was invading world markets for the first time. Hall's method was proved to be 100 per cent cheaper than any other known process of reducing aluminum ore.

By 1917, the nation's annual production was 100,000,000 pounds, a fantastic figure when it is considered that the industry had begun less than 30 years before. About 90 per cent of this output went into war production.

By 1937, production had zoomed to 327,000,000 pounds. The top was reached in 1943 when 1,840,000,000 pounds was produced. In 1944, with war needs diminishing, a total of 1,553,000,000 was realized and in 1945, production had returned to peace time needs with 993,000,000 pounds produced.

The first real understanding of just how valuable a metal aluminum is came to many of us during the last war when the national aluminum collection campaign was staged. Every last scrap was needed, we were informed. It is estimated that 14,000,000 pounds was recovered in 1942, enough to make 2,800 fighting planes.

As numerous military authorities asserted, the final victory in the war would go to the side that controlled the air, it is well that we have Charles Martin Hall and Alfred E. Hunt to thank for the preservation of our democracy. Aluminum is the one indispensable material from which modern fighting planes are constructed.

SUNDAY DINNER
Suggestions

FOR a dinner that is truly American, the A & P Service for Home-Makers suggests corned beef and cabbage this Sunday.

Six pounds of corned beef will serve generously six people and still leave as much over for cold cuts and corned beef hash. The meat should be covered with cold water and left to stand for an hour. Drain off the water and put the meat into a kettle with a carrot and an onion. Add enough cold water to cover the meat and then add one teaspoonful of vinegar for each quart of the water.

Simmer until the meat is tender, which will take from 30 to 40 minutes per pound. Then let the meat stand in the liquid another 20 minutes. Drain and rub butter over the meat before it is brought to the table.

Cabbage is, of course, the traditional vegetable to serve with the corned beef. Hashed brown potatoes, a salad of beets and onions in vinegar, and apple pie will complete the meal.

For an added treat for the family, serve hot cornbread with this meal.

We're proud of the big things our little Want Ads do.

SPORTSMEN'S BRIEFS

By JOE ELBERSON

Last big meeting... the fourth and final big, quarterly meeting of the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association will be held next Tuesday, October 12th, at 8 o'clock, in the Odd Fellows' Hall, Radcliffe and Walnut streets.

Secretary Jim Chichester has secured some excellent sportsmen's movies for the meeting, and in addition, there will be free refreshments and other special attractions prepared for the program.

Season opens... both doves and woodcock become legal game in Pennsylvania beginning tomorrow, October 9th. The season on both birds (Sundays excepted) will run through November 7th. Shooting hours are as follows: From opening day to October 30, inclusive: one-half hour before sunrise to sunset daily; November 1st, 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.; remainder of season, 7 a. m. to 5 p. m. Daily limits have been established at 1 woodcock and 10 doves.

Interesting observation... written by our own County Game Protector, Earl Carpenter, in the October issue of the Pennsylvania Game News, official organ of the Pennsylvania Game Commission, is this item: "You can never underestimate the smartness of the crow. Last month I saw some of the black rascals doing some fancy thievery. There was a box placed along a road I was traveling. It was a bread box. The owner evidently built it so that the baker could leave bread when one was home. But he definitely did not count on the strange proceedings that met my eyes as I drove by. A flock of crows was helping themselves to the bread, tearing the wrapper open, and carrying away the loaf, a slice at a time.—Game Protector S. Earl Carpenter, Doylestown."

Practice shoot... according to the chairman of the trap committee of the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association, a practice blue rock shoot is scheduled for this Sunday, October 10th, over the club traps, located west of Bath Road at Silver Lake. Shells will be available, and all shooters are invited to participate. The shoot will get underway at 1 p. m.

Batting high... ninety-one per cent of the day-old pheasant chicks received by inmates of the Eastern State Penitentiary at Graterford, which were reared for the Bucks County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs, were released in open cover for the shooting pleasure of Bucks County hunters.

That is a remarkable record which probably cannot be duplicated in any other like project. Because of mechanical problems 67 birds of the first 500 received by the inmates were lost. This meant 433 birds were released, or a percentage of 86 of the total. Of the second lot of 450 birds received only 13 were lost, or a percentage of 96.

The birds were distributed among the member clubs of the Federation, with the final division amounting to 22 birds per club. The cost per club was twenty dollars. When a club can buy 22 pheasants for 20 dollars that is a real investment!

A "whopper"... one of the largest carp taken from this area in recent years was landed last Saturday by H. W. Ebling, 2753 North Front street, Philadelphia, when he hooked one weighing 30 pounds. The fish was taken from the Nesquehanna Creek, half way between the PRR bridge and the State road bridge. The tackle consisted of a light steel rod and a No. 2 hook. It was 15 minutes of action for Ebling before he landed the fish.

WARRIORS TO MEET CONSHOHOCKEN IN GAME TONIGHT

Bristol High faces another strong eleven tonight as it lines up against the Conshohocken team at Conshohocken. Opening kickoff is scheduled for 8:30 o'clock.

Last season, Conshohocken trimmed the Warriors, 39-0, in a one-sided contest.

Coach Harry Fox of Conshy, has built almost an entire new team. His only left-over from last season was Don Sands, an end, who is captain of this season's squad.

The Conshohocken team is lighter than usual but possesses plenty of speed in the backfield. Coach Fox is using the "T" this season. The team averages about 170 pounds which will give them a big advantage over the Warriors.

In the Conshohocken line will be two senior tackles, "Eddie" Moleski and Prosper War who weigh 200 and 220 pounds respectively. These two boys will be the entire power in the line. Also in the line will be Carl Szynigle, a guard, who tips the scales at 290 pounds and stands six feet, one inch, in his stocking feet.

GREAT STARS OF WEST WON'T HAVE AN EASY TIME

The great stars of the golden west and the bustling midwest won't have things their own way, as many expect, when they come to victory and two defeats. Pottstown administered the Warriors a severe 36-0 beating last Friday night.

Fox is being assisted in his coaching duties by Winfred Bean, "Hank" Weaver and Herman Voderheld.

Bristol's record to date shows one victory and two defeats. Pottstown administered the Warriors a severe 36-0 beating last Friday night.
